Low Recovery and High Price of Indian Marble

427. SHRI SHANKER SINH VAGHELA: Will the Minister of STEEL AND MINES be pleased to state:

(a) whether the price of Indian marble is high because of the low recovery of about 30 per cent of usable chunks due to unscientific and primitive mining techniques used in Makrana marble mines; and

(b) if so, what are the details in this regard and Government's steps proposed to .be taken to increase the level of recovery?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE DEPARTMENT OF MINES IN THE MINISTRY OF STEEL AND MINES (SHRI RAMANAND YADAV): (.a) and (b) Price ot marble varies with quality and popularity and is not entirely dependent on the recovery rate. As per reports obtained from the field, about 60 per cent rock is recovered in the form of blocks. 25 per cent in the form of small irregular nieces from which tiles etc. are produced; the rest are utilised for manufacture of Makrana chips and marble powder. Since the Makrana mines are in small sizes of plots and have gone on deen as 30 meters possibility of introduction modern machinery for extraction is remote. However, the State Government have introduced use of air com-nressors for drilling holes and breaking the rocks by hammering with wedges to form blocks.
